I am trying to create a regex to capture the name of the template and its filepath in two different groups. So, from the example above, the output would be: {name: TomTomCarMinateuropadownloadchecked, filepath: /home/testuser/Downloads/template1.{ext} } Any help or ideas would be greatly appreciated. A: You can use positive lookbehind and lookahead to capture what you want, (?These NASA public domain images show the southern hemisphere of the Sun in active regions. On the left, two regions of the Sun are visible. As you can see, one region is entirely dark and over the other, a large, dark region is emerging. This is the phenomenon known as an active region. Solar flares can be associated with an active region as it emerges. And these events can happen without the Sun appearing as a single dark spot, making them difficult to spot from Earth. These public domain images, which have been processed by Richard S. Dicke, a space scientist with the National Reconnaissance Office, were used to make a simulation showing the emergence of an active region.var createCtorWrapper = require('./createCtorWrapper'); / Used to compose bitmasks for wrapper metadata. */ var BIND_FLAG = 1; / * Creates a function that wraps `func` to invoke it with the optional `this` * binding of `thisArg`. * * @private * @param {Function} func The function to wrap. * @param {number} bitmask The bitmask of wrapper flag flags. See `createWrapper` * for a list of available flags. * @param {*} [thisArg] The `this` binding of `func`. * @returns {Function} Returns the
