You may have already heard about the new features of Pro Tools HD, but most customers don't know that because they are at version 10.1.2. They used a different version number when they bought their licenses. Apr 24, 2018 I just bought a new iLok and it says the download on the iLok webpage is incompatible with my macOS version (El Capitan) and it won't allow me to download the new iLok version. Is it possible to download the updated iLok Software? Apr 1, 2018 I recently downloaded Pro Tools 10.3.9 for macOS from AvidSystems.com, after clicking on the link, it told me the download is not compatible with Mac OS (Mac OS X), is there any way I can download it? I only want Pro Tools not any other program Dec 20, 2019 Why is the iLok 10.2 not working, the iLok window says ProTools 10.3.5 dmg is not compatible with this iLok and it won't download, now I have no license for ProTools 10, what is the proper way to handle this issue? A: You need to understand the difference between iLok and an iLok license. The iLok license (which is what the software is referring to in the error message) is the equipment that you attach to your iLok, while the iLok is the software license that is running on the computer you use. iLok 10.2 works on all computers running OS X 10.10 and above. Pro Tools HDX 10 is running on version 10.3.10, as you can tell by the iLok license error message you're receiving. Your iLok is version 10.2, so you need to get an iLok 10.2 license to use Pro Tools HDX 10. However, if you have a Pro Tools HDX 10 license on your iLok 10.2, you should be able to attach that to your new iLok 10.2.
