Whitesburg, Pennsylvania Whitesburg is a borough in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, United States. The population was 1,596 at the 2010 census. It is part of the Canton–Massillon Metropolitan Statistical Area. History Whitesburg was incorporated as a borough in 1893. In May 2008, Whitesburg's Mayor Curt Krenl called on residents to boycott the area's liquor stores because of a zoning dispute. Ultimately, the call to boycott the stores was not heeded, and businesses and residents remained calm, as residents of nearby Worthington could only purchase liquor there with a police escort. Several protests were held in opposition to the controversy, and a local movement to recall the mayor was opposed by both the mayor and city council. In October 2008, the borough was fined $7,000 by the state for prohibiting daytime fireworks. The fine had been paid by town residents who had decided to stay home during the day of the fireworks, as they found the threat of an upset bottle of wine too great. Mayor Krenl was quoted as saying "This was a violation of rights, not a violation of the law." Geography Whitesburg is located in southwestern Franklin County at (40.403368, -80.165859). It is bordered to the east by the city of Canton and to the west by the borough of Worthington. U.S. Route 6 (West Main Street) forms the northern border of the borough, and Pennsylvania Route 86 (Ballenger Road) and Pennsylvania Route 18 (State Street) form the southern and western borders. According to the United States Census Bureau, the borough has a total area of, all of it land. Surrounding and adjacent neighborhoods Whitesburg has three land border crossings to the city of Canton, the most distant being with the neighboring borough of Worthington to the west. Both of these land crossings are handled by the Pennsylvania Turnpike, but the turnpike's Exit 216 is located in Worthington, not Whitesburg. Demographics As of the census of 2000, there were 1,812 people, 828 households, and 447 families residing in the borough. The population density was 3,084.0 people per square mile (1,210.8/km²).
