The process of collecting the data is divided into key stages. FIFA's "World Class Team" is made up of real-life 22 footballers from the current FIFA Player Network who volunteered to come to London for motion capture in the closed-off Comms Suite at Kingsfield Studios. This includes world-class English footballers Paul Pogba, Harry Kane, Jamie Vardy and Marcus Rashford, as well as the world's best duo of soccer gamers Cristiano Ronaldo and Lionel Messi. FIFA's "Best Club Team" is made up of players from the best English clubs. The members include a host of the world's elite FIFA 21 Ultimate Team players, including Xherdan Shaqiri, Dele Alli, Sadio Mane and Pedro. The next step was to use some special interactive 3D animations, which were created using motion capture data recorded from a number of the top football players. For example, six high-intensity animation sequences were produced to support key actions from a number of the 22 footballers, with the action being spliced into a live action shot in a way that showed the player's movement in a realistic and believable way. Another key animation sequence was created to demonstrate the different emotional faces a player could make as they interacted with other real-life players or the AI, FIFA or FIFA Ultimate Team's "Coach." FIFA's "Best Team" is made up of players from the best clubs in the world. The members include a number of the world's elite FIFA 21 Ultimate Team players, including Neymar, Harry Kane, Jamie Vardy and Ronaldo. "We worked really hard to ensure that FIFA 22 is a completely new game that embodies the power and emotion of modern-day football," said William Chyrnowski, the lead designer of FIFA 22. "The key to achieving this was to ensure that all gameplay systems are based on in-depth technical and creative research in the 21st century." The key challenge for the design team was to ensure a feeling of authenticity and gameplay that were both separate and unique to FIFA 22. The key technical and creative research that informed the technology, game systems and gameplay of FIFA 22 include: • "Hyper
