Adults with cystic fibrosis (CF) are known to have a high prevalence of sleep disordered breathing (SDB). Continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP) has been shown to be an effective treatment of sleep apnoea (SA) in non-CF patients and may provide an alternative therapy in the CF population. We report the results of a prospective, open-label study, measuring CPAP compliance in a group of adult patients with CF and SA. We also report the results of transcutaneous oxygen (pulse oximetry) monitoring and arterial blood gas analysis in a small subset of patients. From October 1994 to November 1995, data were collected on a consecutive series of CF adults with SA. These data were analysed to determine the prevalence of SDB (defined as $AHI > 10$) and to determine the responsiveness of these patients to CPAP. Thirty-eight patients were identified with SDB and 68% of 648931e174

I have been trying to create a document that contains the correct diacritic signs (accents) in order to fully understand how diacritic letters work. The result of my efforts leads me to questions like: Does a tag have effect on a diacritic sign? (tag abbr cite) Is the symbol used for the diacritic written in the normal way (i.e. As if "phonetic") or is the symbol written in a different way, including the dots over the letters (e.g. Né.3v)? The HTML document I am trying to design is to be used by Windows Word Processing programs and I am sure that a lot of people are using this type of programs to create word documents. How do I get the diacritic sign to show up correctly in a word processing program? A: How does a diacritic work in HTML? To be honest I don't know, because I've never programmed in HTML! (I usually use Java) And I still have a lot of difficulty making it work properly. As usually I prefer the Unicode letter forms, because it would be easier to type them than typing the weird digram. But if you look at it

China's China Agricultural Statistics Yearbook said the sector's gross domestic product growth slowed to 5.6 percent year-on-year, down from 7.2 percent in the previous quarter, and 9.8 percent in the first quarter. The data was released a day after the country's top economic planning body said in a statement that the GDP growth of the world's second-largest economy would likely hover in the range of 6.8 to 7 percent this year. The data also showed the sector's average production and total output in January-March fell 0.2 percent year-on-year and 2.7 percent quarter-on-quarter, respectively. But it also forecasted the agriculture sector would keep a positive growth rate in 2014.Marketing executive on new management approach for Cresco Labs Cresco Labs president and co-founder Charlie Gerba says the company is undergoing a change in how it goes about marketing to consumers in hopes of using the Washington-based cannabis company to make it easier for others to jump into the market.
