This is the first year in which FIFA will use “HyperMotion” to power gameplay. “We can create more real-life movements in the game,” said Adam Bhatti, FIFA’s Head of VR and “HyperMotion.” “We want to show FIFA fans in a way that they haven’t experienced before.” In addition to physical, real-life movements in the game, fans will also be able to experience movement at the speed of real-life football. “It’s the first time we have allowed the player to run, jump and move at full speed,” added Bhatti. During the beta phase, players will have access to movement features designed to give a realistic feel to the gameplay. After the beta phase, the features will be rolled out to the entire community and will be continually updated. “We want to show FIFA fans in a way that they haven’t experienced before,” said Bhatti. Expansion of Player Experiences “Player Experiences” feature in FIFA will be expanded for next year’s game and beyond. “This is the next step for FIFA’s motion capture technology,” said Bhatti. “We’ll have more movements and advanced captures of the ‘Mega Player Experience’.” An important part of our expansion will be to make the game easier to play. Whether it’s customisation, editing, fixing an issue, creating your own player or making a stadium, we’ll continue to provide more ways for fans to interact with FIFA.” Bhatti also noted that fans will be able to watch the “World Class Ambitions” mini-games from the 2017 FIFA U-20 World Cup Finals in Jordan. “In 2017, we captured the FIFA U-20 World Cup Finals in Jordan on camera, and it’s an experience that we want to share with the world,” said Bhatti. “That’s why we created ‘World Class Ambitions.’” From the 41 countries that compete in the U-20 tournament, we have a game that shows off different aspects of the FIFA experience, said Bhatti. “The featured action allows players to enjoy FIFA in a whole different way. We are proud of our commitment to make sure players of all ages can enjoy FIFA
