Q: What is XMLHttpRequest.onreadystatechange called when it is set? I am using XMLHttpRequest to send a POST to a web server. What is the right "event" to be looking for? I see onreadystatechange, and onload, but neither of those are called when I make the post. Also, I have a timer which calls my function every x milliseconds. Will this also set this up to happen? A: XMLHttpRequest (or in older IE versions XMLHttpRequest2) posts to the URI specified in the send() method. XMLHttpRequest.onreadystatechange is called when the request has completed. If you want to detect when the POST request has been completed, use onreadystatechange and make a counter that is incremented each time the request is done. var requestCount = 0; var request = new XMLHttpRequest(); request.onreadystatechange = function () { if (request.readyState == 4 && request.status == 200) { // request is completed requestCount = requestCount + 1; } }; var interval = 1000; setInterval(function() { requestCount = requestCount + 1; request.open("POST", "", true); request.setRequestHeader("Content-Type", "application/x-www-form-urlencoded"); request.send("my_parameters"); }, interval); Demo: UPDATE: If you want to time how long it takes to complete your request, then use XMLHttpRequest.timeout. // set timeout to 3s (1000ms) XMLHttpRequest.timeout = 3 * 1000; var request = new XMLHttpRequest(); request.onreadystatechange = function () { if (request.readyState == 4 && request.status == 200) { // request is completed } }; // I don't have a cool way of timing but this will work in most

Q: How can you accelerate automatic decompression using java? Possible Duplicate: Compress and decompress binary files in Java I have a binary file that I want to read and write. The file size is large so I want to decompress it automatically as it comes in, without decompression happening over a network and back again. Is there a way to implement this in Java? A: You can use Apache's DeflateOutputStream to decompress files like this: import java.io.FileOutputStream; import java.io.IOException; import java.io.OutputStream; import java.util.zip.DeflaterOutputStream; public class FileDecompressor { public static void decompressFile(File file) throws IOException { try { OutputStream outputStream = new DeflaterOutputStream(new FileOutputStream(file)); byte[] buffer = new byte[1024]; while (true) { int numRead = in.read(buffer); if (numRead == -1) { break; } outputStream.write(buffer, 0, numRead); } outputStream.close(); } catch (IOException e) { throw new IOException("Failed to decompress file " + file.getName(), e); } } } You can call it like this: FileDecompressor.decompressFile(new File("somefile.zip")); After this you can decompress as many files you like
